

Internet Rights

You have the right to enjoy the internet and the benefits of it

You have the right to feel safe when using computers and other technologies.

You have the right to be safe from online bullying and the right to report it.

You have the right to keep information about you private and to tell people only what you want them to know about you.

You have the right to object to any videos or images of yourself being placed on the Internet and can object to people filming or photographing you.

You have the right to be educated about safe use of the internet.

Internet Responsibilities

You have the responsibility to use the internet sensibly, legally and not to the detriment of others

You have the responsibility to use the technology legally and respectfully and to inform the relevant authorities should you encounter inappropriate, illegal or harmful content.

You have the responsibility to treat others with respect online

You have the responsibility to keep your data and passwords safe

You have the responsibility to use images of yourself and others in a respectful and legal manner

